

Robert Ochola is the CEO of AfricaNenda. He is an expert in strategy and innovation within the African banking and mobile telecommunication industry. During his career, Dr Ochola has pioneered the development of a new Pan-African Payments and Settlement Systems (PAPSS) for driving cross-border trade using local currency. He's also led the development of mobile payment solutions and the expansion of its product suite, along with overseeing the successful roll-out of solutions for ultra-low-cost mobile devices across Africa and the Middle East. Prior to his nomination as the CEO at AfricaNenda, Dr Ochola has served as the Director of Strategy and Innovation at Afreximbank, as the Head of Strategy with Safaricom, and as the Director of Strategy, Research, and Innovation at the KCB Bank Group. He is an alumnus of Imperial College London, Warwick Business School, and the University of Cape Town.